Carey turns in capital effort

Star News Services

Jim Carey posted his second successive shutout and league-leading ninth of the season, and the Washington Capitals scored twice on their first four shots to beat the Ottawa Senators 5-0 Friday night.

Carey's shutout moved him ahead of Don Beauregard as Washington's all-time shutout leader with 13. He now has consecutive shutouts twice this year, three times in his career and has five shutouts in his last 12 starts.

The Capitals killed a 54-second penalty at the end of regulation to help Carey preserve the shutout with 24 saves.

Dale Hunter, Kelly Miller, Peter Bonza, Todd Krygier and Michael Pivonia scored for Washington.

The Capitals' third win in a row moved them two points ahead of New Jersey into sole possession of sixth place in the Eastern Conference with 12 points. Ottawa suffered its seventh straight road loss.

Elsewhere it was: Flyers 6 Sabres 5 (OT)

Bob Corkum's goal with 1:17 left in overtime lifted Philadelphia to an important road win over Buffalo in a game temporarily suspended by a fight-filled second period.

Eric Lindros scored one goal and had two assists to lead the Flyers, who earned their seventh win in eight games and moved one point ahead of the New York Rangers for first place in the Atlantic Division.

Philadelphia had a 4-2 lead when the second period was suspended after several fights broke out simultaneously with 24 seconds remaining. At one point, every player on the ice was fighting, including both Trevor and Philadelphia goalie Garth Snow.

Kings 4 Flames 3
Yanic Perreault scored two goals as the Los Angeles Kings edged the Calgary Flames in a crucial NHL Western Conference game.

Vladimir Tsyplakov and Dimitri Khristich add the other goals for Los Angeles. Scoring for Calgary were Cory Stillman, Michael Nylander and German Titov.

Oilers 3 Jets 2
The Edmonton Oilers inched closer to a playoff spot in the NHL's Western Conference when they hung on to defeat the Winnipeg Jets 3-2.

The victory sparked by Miroslav Satan's two goals, tightened the race in the West as the Oilers moved to within three points of the Jets. Winnipeg holds down the eighth and final playoff berth with 69 points.

The win also vaulted the Oilers one point ahead of the idle Anaheim Mighty Ducks. Both the Oilers and Jets have seven games remaining in the season while the Ducks have eight.

AT THE RACES Like father, like son

When his day job came to a sudden end, Glen Hardy simply shifted all his energies to his true love.

Hardy, 25, was working as a purchasing agent for a local window manufacturer, but was let go, a victim of corporate cutbacks.

Fortunately for him, he had always kept one foot in the saddle, so making the transition back into a full-time horseman wasn't all that difficult.

"I look at it as being down to one in-one instead of two," Hardy says, taking his setbacks in stride as he readied one of his horses for a recent race at Windsor Raceway.

"Now, instead of harness racing being one of my jobs, it's become my No. 1 job."

The son of Ken Hardy, one of the dominant drivers on Windsor's five-eighties mile oval for many years, the younger Hardy never really considered leaving the horse-racing business for good.

"Even when I was in college (at Fanshawe in London), I was still coming out to the track and working in the barns," he said.

"I always kept a couple of horses on the go and I'd be out helping out here and there."

He brought a stable of horses to Windsor at the start of fall meet, ready to give his horse all of his attention.

Today, while dad sits at the top end of the industry, he gets the pleasure of watching Glen try to make a name for himself on the track.

"He's dabbling a little bit. He's been driving for a couple of years," Ken says of his son. "He's decided he's going to give it a try and see if he can make a go of it as a career. He's brought six horses to Windsor and I guess we'll see what happens."

LOCAL ROUNDUP Clarke, Ray honored

Venolyn Clarke and Steve Ray have been named the University of Windsor's outstanding athletes of the year.

And Dan Ceman and Andrea Favero grabbed top honors as the outstanding student-athletes of the year in ceremonies held Friday at the Cleary International Centre.

Clarke won the Banner Shield for her accomplishments with the track and field team. The fifth-year athlete was named a Canadian Inter-university Athletic Union All-Canadian and an Ontario Women's Intercollegiate Athletic Association all-star each year of her collegiate career.

This season, she won four gold medals at the Ontario championships in the 60 metres, 300 metres, 4x200 and 4x400 relays. She went on to grab CIAU gold in the 60, 300 and 4x200.

During her career, she won five Ontario and five national championships.

Ray won the Olympic Shield for his prowess on the volleyball court. A member of the national B team, Ray has been named an OCAA all-star for the past three years.

A complete player, Ceman saw action on both the power play and the penalty killing unit. A fourth-year kinesiology student, Ceman is an academic all-Canadian and a member of the dean's honor roll for the university's human kinetics department.

Favero is the leading scorer of the women's soccer team. A versatile player who saw action at both midfield and forward, she has the ability to dominate play. A fourth-year science student, Favero is an Academic All-Canadian.

Most valuable player awards were handed out to: Missy McCleary and Rick Tremain, cross-country; Rob McElwain, football; John Heaton, golf; Favero and Doug Oberholzer, soccer; George Rinsita and Matt McMillan, basketball; Shelly Campbell and Rick Pracey, hockey; Clarke and Tremain, track and field; Elaine Murton and Chris Smith, volleyball.

All Canadian awards were handed out to Chris Church and Dan Comis, football; McCleary, Tremain, Dana Cunningham, Tina Rocnik, cross-country; Clarke, Tremain, Rocnik, Cunningham, Drew Barisdale, Matt Cochrane, Omer Hafiz, Mike Nolan, Stephanie Goun, Jennifer Graham, Tracy Higgs, Tanya Kloppenborg, Marcia Robney, Kyle Robinson and Sean Ryan.

"A" Awards given annually to supporters of Lancer athletes went to Ted Laurendeau, Van Niforos, Diane Rawlings and Windsor Star sports writer Dave Hall.

The Gino Fracas Coaching Award went to Ritchie Coughlin, who has coached the long and triple jumps for the past seven years.

The right stuff Venolyn's Justin Adam, a right-handed pitcher in the Kansas City Royals' chain, was assigned Friday to pitch for Lansing, Mich., in the Midwest Class A League.

Adam, 21, was a 1992 seventh round draft pick of the Royals who played last year in Eugene, Oregon in the short season Northwest A League.

Lansing's home opener is Friday, April 5 in a new 10,000 seat stadium. Adam, a graduate of the Windsor Selects' program, is part of the team's starting rotation.

Clarification A story in Friday's Windsor Star inadvertently omitted the names of some scorers in Thursday's high school all-star game between WSSAA and ECSSAA.

The WSSAA team got goals from five players as they edged ECSSAA 5-4. Scoring for the city stars were Greg Lort, Jeff Sadler, Jeff Smith, Brad Gaylord and Jon Malmdere.

Replaying with goals for the county were Josh Thompson, Justin Lawrenson, J.W. Stutzinger and Steve Hillenbrand.
